Baloo the bear taught Mowgli the mancub everything he needed to know about the jungle . Mowgli knew how to tell if a branch was rotten before climbing on it. He knew how to speak politely to the wild bees if he came upon a hive .He knew how to warn the water snakes in the pools before taking a dip. Then there were the hunting calls. Mowgli had to learn to call all the creatures so he could call them if he needed their help. Each creature had a different call and Mowgli had to learn all of them.

Sometimes Bagheera the black panther came to see how Mowgli was getting on. He would lie along a branch, purring gently watching and listening . I've been teaching him the hunting calls this morning said Baloo I should like to hear them said Bagheera . Mowgli said Baloo in a gentle voice. Let Bagheera hear the calls that I taught you this morning .

Mowgli's face lit up. He loved showing off. Calls for which creatures? he asked. The jungle has many tongues. I know them all.

Very well, then, laughed Bagheera. Tell me how you would call the kite .Without having to think about it, Mowgli put his hands round his mouth.

A long clear sound came from his lips.

Very good said Bagheera.

Now, how about a snake?

Mowgli gave a low piercing hiss. Then he kicked his feet up and clapped his hands .He jumped onto Bagheera's back and sat drumming his heels against the glossy black skin.
